

BestVeinCare.com Newest Supporter of ACPF

The future of phlebology is bright and nothing demonstrates faith in its future like the recent gift of BestVeinCare.com!

BestVeinCare.com made a "Visionary" level or $150,000 gift to support phlebological education, research and growth initiatives invested in by the ACPF Board of Directors. "This Foundation shares the same principles and interests as BestVeinCare, we both are striving to raise the level of patient care in the treatment of venous disease and therefore partnering to invest our resources with those of other Foundation donors just made good business sense to us!" says Dr. Carlton Duane Randleman, President and CEO.

Founded in 2009, BestVeinCare.com may be considered a relative new comer to the phlebology community. However, its founder, Dr. Randleman is a cardiovascular surgeon, a member of the College, and Board certified Diplomat of the American Board of Phlebology. "As a physician and entrepreneur, I was so impressed by the passion and energy of ACPF volunteers and donors I met that I felt it was the right thing to invest in for my company immediately."

BestVeinCare.com is dedicated to making a recognizable impact on the treatment of venous disease. "Our stated mission to become the leading authoritative resource for evaluating vein centers & vein care physicians may be considered ambitious, but we see our service as providing an invaluable public resource to enable patients to make informed vein care choices," explains Randleman.

"Being a corporate supporter of the ACPF is a good idea on every level for us. We are proud and pleased to add BestVeinCare.com to the growing list of corporate and physician supporters of the effort to advance the specialty through investment in education, research and growth projects."